Our Contemporaries

IN THE DOLDRUMS

This is a time when almost all human activities are resting beneath a thick cloud of depression. In nearly every country there is a vast part of the population unemployed. Capital is held in the same condition, with the inevitable result of much stagnation in trade, in industry and in commerce. The effect upon all public efforts is but a natural sequence. Human nature being what it is, people think that not alone real charity but any call made upon them which they regard as being beneficial to others must, in the circumstances, yield in precedence to their own personal needs. These must be first satisfied before the demands on behalf of other folk are even considered. Zionism was not likely to escape the dark patch in the universal heavens, although it is a negation of its basic principles to regard it as an altruistic striving. Yet there are not, comparatively, many of those who support the Zionist Movement who do so out of conviction of the advantages it possesses for themselves, which of course is at once the test of the validity of its right to be called a National Movement and proof that it does not appeal on the score of altruism which is an essential of all charity. It is really an effort for Jewish self-help, as in fact it was originally contemplated. But that view of Zionism is, as things are, an idealistic conception. People will give to it, if they think they can afford to; few will realise that they cannot afford to refuse their support. There is not much to be gained, at the moment anyway, by any examination of the question why there are so many, both within the Zionist ranks and outside, who must be classed with the former; while of the latter the number is as small as it is. Recrimination on this point were futile, but the true position must be faced—that the Movement is in the old doldrums, unable to remain in active movement, that the winds of finance upon which to a large extent it depends for that purpose, have become stilled, and that cash upon which it necessarily relies has for the time being failed it. The reasons for this are undoubtedly differently held by differing schools of thought and opinion. But the value of enforcing this or that view is neither as urgent nor as important as the devising of measures for carrying Zionism over the present time of crisis, and for fitting it so that it may take the fullest advantage of the return to more favourable conditions which, sooner or later, will present themselves.

It would be inconsistent in view of what we have said, to indicate the lines upon which we think such preparation should proceed. But we deem it permissible to urge as throughout we have contended, that the difficulties inseparable from the unique effort which Zionists are striving to accomplish, will not be the more easily overcome by neglect of Zionist principles, nor by taking what appear to be "short cuts" that are opposed to them. There is much talk just now about an overhauling of the leadership of the Movement and of its administration generally. This may become necessary, especially if Dr. Weizmann decides to make his proffered resignation effectual. But we sincerely hope that Zionists are not going to be deluded into believing that a swopping of horses while crossing the stream is going to remedy all Zionist troubles; any more than a cutting down of the salaries of the permanent officials in the Organization, is the right way to begin in effecting imperative economies. The Movement should not readily ignore the value to it of those who have rendered it many years of service, and can still give it the benefit of their ripe knowledge and long experience. Nor should it forget that just when "things are bad" it should try to secure the best talent available from well-tried servants. This cannot be done by raiding salaries. So long as there is work for them to do and they do it, these officials should be well-remunerated for what is in reality expert work; while on the other hand care should be taken that such labour as they are called upon to perform is not unduly onerous. In any event, the Movement does not call for attention only in any one, but it does in many several directions, and it were folly to concentrate upon a single aspect, as some are evidently inclined to do. That would be but to prolong the critical nature of the position in which the Movement is for the time being placed, and from which we hope and believe it will, given courage and good feeling, emerge all the stronger for the trial it has with so many other "movements" the world over, been called upon to bear.—London (England) Jewish Chronicle.

"DISLIKE OF THE UNLIKE"

When George Bernard Shaw, speaking at a dinner in London on October 28 in the interest of reconstruction work for East European Jewries, drank "to the greatest of our contemporaries, Einstein," he paid this tribute to the noted physicist and mathematician:

"Napoleon and other great men were makers of empires, but these eight men whom I am about to mention were makers of universes and their hands were not stained with the blood of their fellow men. I go back 2,500 years and how many can I count in that period? I can count them on the fingers of my two hands. Pythagoras, Ptolemy, Kepler, Copernicus, Aristotle, Gallileo, Newton and Einstein, and I still have two fingers vacant."

But the Detroit Free Press thinks otherwise. Writing under the heading of "The Peculiar Dr. Einstein," its wise editor states that to many Americans this scientist's dislike of publicity and his anti-money complex" will on his approaching visit to this country, be "as puzzling as the theories they talk about but do not in the slightest degree comprehend." "It will not occur to them," says the Free Press, "that except for the characteristic which make them scratch their heads, Dr. Einstein's name as a scientist probably never would have been known."

We leave it to the intelligence of our readers to judge between the verdicts of George Bernard Shaw and the Detroit Free Press, and then to place Dr. Albert Einstein in their own categories of great. But we cannot help but wonder whether the dislike of Einstein in certain American quarters (the Detroit Free Press, for instance) is not due to his being unlike the mass which craves notoriety and jeers at the type of genius that shuns the limelight. The late Dr. Max Nordau said that "Xenophobia," the dislike of the unlike, accounts for race hatred and for anti-Semitism. Others ascribe to all dislikes this sin of being unlike the mass. Dr. Einstein must be such a sinner. How else are we to explain the Free Press's dislike of such a "peculiar" person?—Bnai Brith Messenger.

CORNWALL

Rosenfield Chapter of Hadassah met at the home of Mrs. R. Cooperman, Tuesday, January 13, followed by a bridge and tea. Miss Clara Wener was in charge of money donations. The door prize was won by Mrs. Wener, of Montreal. This Chapter in Cornwall have done their share in sending $75 towards work in Palestine for school and infant welfare. Mrs. A. Dover gave an outline of all work being done. Through bridges and teas at different members' homes this chapter has met twice monthly and has raised substantial amounts. No outside donations are being sought. The new president of the chapter is Mrs. Phil Abugov.

ZIONIST CONGRESS POSTPONED

Announcement was made Monday night, January 19th, that the world congress of the Zionist Organization, scheduled for February 24, had been definitely postponed until early in June. A cable from London confirming the postponement was read at the executive committee meeting of the Zionist Organization of Canada at their headquarters on Sherbrooke street. A. J. Freiman, president, acted as chairman.

Preliminary arrangements for a publicity campaign for 1931 were discussed. Mrs. A. J. Freiman presented a report on Hadassah. A message of felicitation was sent to Felix Warburg in New York on his 60th birthday. A cable was sent to Nahum Sokolow, chairman of the world Zionist executive, in London, England, expressing good wishes on his 70th birthday. A one-minute silence was observed at the meeting as a token of respect for Nathan Straus, Jewish philanthropist and prominent Zionist, who died recently.

RABBI RESCUED FROM ASPHYXIATION

Six persons were overcome by coal gas shortly after three o'clock Wednesday afternoon, January 14 while seven other families narrowly escaped asphyxiation, when a pipe connection to a furnace broke. Those partially overcome were given first aid and later sent to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where their condition was reported as not serious.

The patients were Rabbi Moses I. Wachtfogel, 19 years of age; his wife and two children, Max and Benjamin, aged 22 years and nine years respectively, and all living at 5695 Esplanade avenue; Mattie Bergelman, 65 years of age and her niece Rosie, three years old living at 5690 Esplanade avenue.

Mrs. A. M. Livingstone, 5682 Esplanade Avenue, whose home was slightly affected by the fumes, was the first to warn the occupants of the other dwellings. After noticing the smoke in her home and opening all the doors and windows she proceeded to notify the neighbors and finding them unconscious she asked the telephone operator to summon a doctor to the address as there were some people overcome by gas. She then went next door where Rabbi Wachtfogel and his family live and there found six of his wife and two children unconscious. She rendered first aid while awaiting the arrival of Dr. H. G. Chappel, of 5457 Jeanne Mance street, who had been summoned by the telephone operator.

The physician rendered first aid to the unconscious group and then went next door where he found Mrs. Mattie Brightman and her niece unconscious. First-aid was also rendered them.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Cons. emergency squad was summoned and used four pulmotors on the patients before they were brought back to consciousness. Ambulances from the Royal Victoria Hospital removed the patients to hospital.

Apart from the two residences where the occupants were overcome by the coal gas, seven other residences in the vicinity were filled with the fumes but the residents noticed the peculiar smell in the house in time and opened all the windows and doors.

Dr. A. M. Lachiver, of 5682 Esplanade Avenue, whose wife was the first to give the alarm, said that at the time of the accident Mrs. Livingstone was notified and that as her wife was ill with the poisonous fumes. He assisted in the work of first treating the family and then rendered aid to the neighbors.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Cons. stated that the cause of the escaping fumes was a broken pipe connected to the furnace in the cellar of the building.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS LAUNCHED

Canada cannot forge ahead industrially or commercially with only ten millions of people. The Dominion is in need of productive immigrants who will assimilate themselves readily and assume the privileges and responsibilities of Canadian citizens, said Samuel Factor, M.P., of Toronto, at the opening rally campaign luncheon of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada at the Montefiore Club, Guy street, Sunday, January 18, during the course of his appeal for financial support on the part of Canadian Jewry for a continuance of the work carried on by the organization. An appeal for $25,000 was launched officially, under the chairmanship of Samuel Bronfman and S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., Mayor David Croll, of Windsor, Ont., Ald. Jos. Schubert, and Ald. Max Seigler. Referring to the efforts of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada to bring the right type of prospective citizens to this country, Mr. Factor said that no Jewish immigrant is allowed to become a public charge on municipal or other public institutions. Co-operating with Canadian citizens desirous of bringing relatives from Europe, he said, the society does not cease its efforts on their behalf until their charges are established properly. He expressed the belief that the local community would demonstrate its ability to support such a praiseworthy and important cause as the rehabilitation of their oppressed co-religionists in foreign countries.

"Every dollar you contribute today will save $4 tomorrow, which is not so very far away, if the campaign this week for $25,000 is not a success," David Croll, Mayor of Windsor, Ontario, maintained in his brief address.

Forty thousand Jewish immigrants have been brought into Canada and established since the inauguration of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, 10 years ago, Ben Robinson, president, said in his outline of the society's activities.

"Thousands of dollars are expended annually to keep our wards from becoming municipal charges. The unemployment situation as it exists today will increase our responsibilities although our agencies are functioning very well along these lines. Still we are obliged to maintain general offices at the ports of Halifax, St. John and Vancouver, with branches at Winnipeg, Toronto, and Montreal, to carry on our work efficiently. We subsidize a system of night schools to hasten the assimilation of the Jewish immigrants," Mr. Robinson said.

"With a cessation of the permit traverse as a result of the Government's policy of curtailed immigration, our problems have become more acute. Our general income is $8,000 annually, but we need about $20,000.

Marcus Sperber, K.C., said that it was in the best interests of the community to have an organization such as the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada to continue its work on behalf of the persecuted Jews in Eastern Europe. S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., spoke. A collection netted $5,000. A mass meeting was held shortly afterwards at the Y.M.H.A. At the head table were Samuel Bronfman, Mayor David Croll, Samuel Factor, M.P., S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., Allan Bronfman, Rabbi H. Abramowitz, Rabbi Julius Berger, J. INVESTMENT TRUSTS

By George H. Jaray

As mentioned last week, diversification is the basis of any fixed trust. Being a long term investment, issues only should be chosen by its promotors which reasonably can be expected to appreciate and no special influences should be considered when composing the portfolio. The shares of a fixed trust are more likely to reach the ideal where selection is not narrow and where its components represent all leading fields of industry. The wider the diversification policy the less will effects of failure of one or more companies change expectations.

It is known that in any portfolio however carefully chosen over a term of years one or the other issue may possibly go bad which brings the corollary that a certain proportion must do better than the average. For this reason bonds in a portfolio are rarely seen and a fixed trust based on only bonds would present considerable difficulty unless more power of substitution is granted to the management. A number of stocks may fall in price yet the rise in price of one other stock in the same portfolio may offset any loss. If a bond out of a broad list collapses it will be difficult to write off the loss. Easy money rates cause a bond to rise but its growth is limited.

Stressing the accumulation function fixed trust have arranged for reinvesting plans so that a shareholder may plough back his surplus and cumulate over a term of years. The position of the investor is being further improved that some companies have arranged to avoid any charge on liquidation of the portfolio and to enable him to convert fractions of a unit into the deposited shares or their cash equivalent.

The fixed trust cannot suffer from poor management and the investor gains from the inevitable growth of industry. By taking advantage of cyclic fluctuations of the stock market he may liquidate when he believes prices are too high and purchase when he believes them too low. He is further assured of one more fact the make up of his trust's portfolio. It cannot be used as a dumping ground for securities which have not found a ready outside market.

The fixed trust is a foil to bonds and preferred stocks as an investment medium. The latter offers safety and assurance against the effects of cycles in business on income whilst the former offers insurance against the fluctuations in purchasing power possessing profit possibilities which the bond does not afford and benefiting from advantages by the greater sensitiveness to any change of price it is probable that the fixed trust has come to stay, and as an investment and of speculative medium.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Lessing J. Rosenwald is matching dollar for dollar the voluntary contribution of the Sears, Roebuck and Company employees in the economic depression. His money and theirs will make about $100,000 per month. In setting an example to other men in commerce and industry the younger Rosenwald who is president of the Philadelphia Federation, is following the example his father set him. People are more often surprised when a rich son amounts to something than when a middle-class or poor one does. Children seem to survive the lack of material things better than a surfeit of them when it comes to development of personality. For one thing the understanding and devotion of hired help is at best synthetic. Then children are often over-shadowed even in adulthood by parents who have gained positions of wealth and reputation. The scions of many Jewish houses are nitwits or actual wastrels or ineffectual, colorless individuals. But in numerous American Jewish families good blood has surmounted the snares and difficulties presented by soft living and too much shelter. The Rosenwald family is lucky in having a son to carry on the father's interest in humanity and in maintaining high character in spite of great wealth.

In 1909 the London (England) Evening Standard reported a conversation between George Bernard Shaw and Reuben Brainin, the Hebrew writer, in which Shaw said:

"I don't know why the Jews should be looking for a land of their own. Their dispersion throughout Europe gives them so much power and influence. They get on wherever they settle, just like the Irishmen, who languish in their own country but flourish in every other. I should expect the Jews to be most unpopular in England, not among Irishmen or Scotchmen, but among Englishmen. The reason is because of their intellectual consciousness. The Englishman doesn't like this intellectual consciousness, and is even afraid of it. He prefers not to know what he is doing, otherwise he might fear that he is doing wrong, and so do nothing at all. But he knows that the Jew can see through and beyond what he is doing and he doesn't like it. The Englishman is content to muddle through. As Cromwell said: 'No man goes so far as he who does not know how far he is going.' Of course, muddling gets the Englishman into trouble. Antonio, in "The Merchant of Venice," was a typical Englishman in not knowing what the bond contained, and in getting angry when he afterwards found out. So far as business dealings are concerned, I have found Jews most satisfactory, and have never been deceived by them. But I can hardly say the same about Englishmen with whom I have had dealings."

"Is it not time," asks a letter-writer in the London Jewish Chronicle, "to cease singing ma-yofehs (how beautifuls) to every non-Jew who deigns to smile at a Jew?" The same question could be asked here and the correct answer would be in the affirmative. In Canada as well as in England Jewish self-respect suffers from too little common sense and too much singing of "how beautifuls."

Jews may give the leisure of a life time to work in a Jewish cause or organization and co-workers will take them and their efforts entirely for granted. But let some titled non-Jew extend patronage to a bazaar and workers will go off into raptures and buzz back and forth elatedly with the news. Two columns of it will get into a Jewish newspaper and the organization will make a note of it to see that duty has been done. Two inches of it will appear with Jewish names reduced to absurdities in a daily newspaper and Jewish readers will be blind to mistakes and done in by waves of gratitude. How beautiful it is for the daily newspaper to be so kind! A Jewish leader may be of mediocre quality at most but let him be smiled upon by the Goyim and his own people begin to kick themselves for their stupidity in not having recognized him for solid gold. He may have been dross before but the magic touch has been applied and he is a made man. A washed-out returned missionary type of Gentile lecturer will get a drawing card in a synagogue whereas a Jew of the same intellectual calibre and record would hardly be glanced at. A two-by-four Gentile writer will be welcomed with feasting and bright lights and will receive after some extra heady feeling from some Jewish celebration which would show more coolness toward a Jewish honor guest of high quality.

This over-appreciation of non-Jewish smiles of attention does not elevate the position of Judaism in the eyes of the world. On the contrary it lowers and cheapens it and such a Jewish attitude toward non-Jewish favor is subversive of self-respect and ruinous to a proper dignity. f.f.c.

News Of The Hebrew University

This is the third of the monthly News-Letters, compiled by Dr. Ben-David, Assistant Registrar of the Hebrew University, Jerusalem. It contains news of happenings during the past month on the campus at Mt. Scopus, the Hebrew University Library, and the student body, together with advance notice of expeditions to be undertaken by the University, and other projects to be undertaken during the present academic year.

As part of the country-wide campaign now going on for scholarships in behalf of needy students at the Hebrew University, Jacob Epstein, Baltimore merchant and philanthropist, has given $5000 as a nucleus of an endowment fund to which he intends to add from time to time. The conditions of the gift, as outlined by Mr. Epstein, state that "the income from the fund is to be used to help poor students in the Hebrew University who need assistance, and who could not otherwise obtain a university education."

The gift, which will be known as the "Scholarship Fund of Jacob Epstein of Baltimore," will yield an income sufficient to support a student for one year, according to word received here from Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the American Advisory Committee. Mr. Epstein, who has been interested in the Hebrew University since its opening by the late Lord Balfour in 1925, made a gift of $10,000 in that year when Dr. Judah L. Magnes, Chancellor of the University, toured the United States in its behalf.

Mr. Warburg also announces the receipt of scholarships in the sum of $300, the minimum amount necessary to pay a student's board and lodging in Jerusalem from the Palestine Scholarship Association of Boston and the Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity. Kappa Nu Fraternity is also conducting a campaign which will be terminated the first of February, to establish a scholarship in the sum of $300, and Zeta Beta Tau's Grand Council has renewed the sum alloted by it last year for a scholarship at the University.

In recognition of the generosity of Dr. Julius Jarcho, Consulting Gynecologist of Beth Israel and Sydenham Hospitals, of New York, the Hebrew University has named the Medical Department of the Library in honor of Dr. Jarcho. In future it is to be designated as "The Dr. Julius Jarcho Medical Library." The most important collections in the Medical Library, which now contains nearly 25,000 volumes and is the only one of its kind in the Near East, were donated by Dr. Jarcho, a member of the American Jewish Physicians' Committee for the University.

In addition to subscribing for a large number of medical periodicals yearly, and the donator of many books on medicine, Dr. Jarcho has established a Fund, the interest of which after five years, is to be used for the purchase of medical books. Branches of the Medical Library, which is used by physicians throughout Palestine, have been established in the Straus Health Center, Jerusalem, and in Tel Aviv. The Medical Department of the University Library was established by the American Jewish Physicians Committee under the Chairmanship of Dr. Nathan Ratnoff, President of the Medical Board of Beth Israel Hospital of New York.

Dr. Jarcho has also established a Library on Athletics, Sports and Scouting, which is part of the Wolffsohn Library of the Hebrew University. School teachers and social workers of Palestine have reported that the Department on Sports has been of great help to them in organizing health circles among the youth of the country. The Library contains books on personal hygiene, games and dances, nature study and physical culture.

Professor Kirsopp Lake, of Harvard University will conduct a Seminar on the Acts Apostolorum and other parts of the New Testament at the Hebrew University during the spring months. Professor Lake, who has lectured at the University on previous trips, will be in Palestine in connection with the archaeological expedition which will be under the joint auspices of the Hebrew University, the Palestine Exploration Fund and the British School of Archaeology in Jerusalem. According to the preliminary plans just issued, this Expedition will follow up the work of an earlier Harvard University Expedition, also in Samaria, which uncovered the City of the Biblical King Ahab.

Dr. E. L. Sukenik, Field Archaeologist of the University, will have charge of the Aramaic side of the Expedition which will attempt to uncover the Cities of Herod and the City of Omri, father of Ahab. The City of Omri is the oldest portion of the site selected for excavation.

Dr. Sukenik is at present in Europe where he was invited to deliver the Schweich Lectures on Biblical Archaeology in the rooms of the British Academy. The sessions in London were presided over by the Archdeacon of Westminster and the Director of the British Museum. Dr. Sukenik has lectured under the auspices of the Society of Friends of the Hebrew University in Warsaw, Poland and before the Archaeological Association of Berlin.

In connection with the world-wide festivities in honor of the 70th birthday of Simon Dubnow, famous Jewish historian, whose works have been translated into many languages a special exhibition was held at the Hebrew University Library. In addition to copies of his books in all the languages into which they have been translated, the exhibition included many of his letters written both in Hebrew and in Russian to famous people of the last half-century. Among the group are letters censured by the Russian authorities. Photographs and various other souvenirs of the work of Dubnow supplement the exposition.

The Lord Plumer Fellowship in Arabic studies for the academic year 1930-31 has been awarded to Benjamin Maisler on the recommendation of the Faculty of the School of Oriental Studies. This Fellowship was founded in 1928 by the Friends of the Hebrew University in London to commemorate Lord Plumer's term of office as High Commissioner.

Historical Sketches

The Hadassah Organization of Canada was started by Mrs. Anna Selick in Toronto at a meeting at the Zionist Institute October 6th., 1916, when 14 women were present out of 300 invited. The next year the organization was strong enough to plan the first Hadassah drive which they did at the home of Mrs. M. L. Willinsky. $500 was collected in a house-to-house compaign for funds for war refuges from Palestine encamped at Alexandria, Egypt, and before the season was over 112 dozen garments had been made and shipped to these refugees. In July, 1917, at the Zionist Convention in Winnipeg, Mrs. Selick presented a resolution authorizing the formation of Hadassah Chapters throughout Canada. In May, 1918, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. M. Kates, a provincial Hadassah conference elected Mrs. Selick chairman and Miss Lilian Goldstein, of Hamilton, secretary. The Herzl Girls of Ottawa and the Palestine Sewing Club of Montreal were invited to send delegates to the conference in Toronto in 1919. After this meeting Mrs. Selick invited Mrs. A. J. Freiman, president of the Herzl Girls, to take over the chairmanship for a Dominion-wide campaign. $160,000 was raised for the Helping Hand Fund of which about $45,000 was raised under the convenorship of Mrs. J. J. Allen, of Toronto.

Since then Mrs. Freiman has been re-elected Dominion president at each Hadassah convention. Co-ordination of all the chapters into the present federation took place under her chairmanship. Mrs. Freiman has toured Canada and presented to communities of sufficient size the case of Israel in need and awaiting Hadassah help. Already noted for her philanthropic work, her personal magnetism and ability to gather together followers who feel a personal affection for her, has made her the influence which cements together the many chapters of Hadassah so widely scattered throughout the Dominion. Mrs. Selick has been one of her closest adherents. Another was Miss Ida Seigler, of Montreal, now Mrs. Ariel Bension, of Palestine.

Earlier organizations prepared the way for the federation of women's Zionist organizations. One of these was the Daughters of Zion founded in Toronto in 1900 by Mrs. I. H. Siegel. Another was the Daughters of Zion founded the next year in Montreal by Mrs. Clarence I. de Sola, who was president for four years. Succeeding presidents were Miss Sadie Vineberg, Miss Miriam Bernstein, Mrs. Felix Harris, Mrs. J. S. Leo, and Mrs. Louis Fitch. By 1903 there were Daughters of Zion societies in Ottawa, London, Ontario,—Winnipeg and St. John, N.B. In 1911 the Jewish Women's League for Cultural Work in Palestine was formed in Montreal with Mrs. J. S. Leo as the first president. This group sent nurses and teachers of home industries to Palestine. Other officers included Mesdames H. H. Livingstone, F. Harris, L. Goldman and J. Elkin. By 1917 there were women's Zionist organizations in Hamilton, Ont., Vancouver, B.C., Glace Bay, Brandon, Manitoba, and Regina, Saskatchewan. In the Hadassah nucleus was the Palestinian Sewing Circle founded in Montreal in 1918. Mesdames F. Harris, L. Fedderman, J. Rose, J. C. Zacks, H. L. Sourkes and A. Dainow were active in it.

Among other workers in the beginnings of Hadassah were Miss Betty Goldstick, of Toronto; Mrs. M. Simon, of Hamilton; Mrs. Leon Lazarus and Mrs. S. Rich, of Brantford, Ont., and Miss Goldie Shear. When Hadassah started in 1919, Mrs. L. Fitch was the first president for Montreal and those associated with her were Mesdames S. Kahn, E. G. Bernstein, F. Harris, A. J. Alexander, B. Perelmuter, Leon Goldman, H. L. Sourkes, J. C. Zacks, H. H. Livingstone, A. Levin, L. Miller, Mrs. Fisher and the late Mrs. G. Sanders, Mesdames S. L. Wagner, M. Fineberg, M. Rabinovitch, H. Singer, and Miss F. Solomon. Workers in Vancouver were Mesdames J. B. Joffe, M. Ruben, and L. Rosenbaum; in Glace Bay, Mrs. B. Seigel and Mrs. B. Hamburg; in St. John, Mrs. Sarah Kunitzky, Mrs. J. Goldman; in Halifax, Mrs. C. Bvalin; in Quebec, Mrs. L. Lazarowitz; in Winnipeg, Miss Goldie Silver, Mrs. M. Rady, and Mrs. H. E. Wilder; in Ottawa, Mesdames L. Leiken, A. Kert, W. Shenkman, J. J. Marks, A. H. Coplan, B. Pearl, A. Drazin, J. Golden, D. Green, C. Greenberg, J. Holzman, H. Freedman, B. Bookman, and Miss Birdie Abelson (now Mrs. J. Miller of Cornwall, Ont.).

in Calgary, Alberta, Miss Rose Rabinowitz, Mrs. A. H. Goldberg; in Port Arthur, Mrs. J. Cowan and Mrs. R. Cohen; in Fort William, Mrs. Rose Drapkin; in Sault Ste. Marie, Mrs. D. Richardson and Mrs. H. Friedman; in Sherbrooke, Que., Mrs. J. Rosenbloom and Mrs. Rebecca Echenberg; in Lachine, Que., Mrs. M. Miller and Mrs. A. Cramer; in Regina, Mesdames M. Helman, Harry Bronfman, S. Kraminsky, B. Lesk, J. Friedgut; in Edmonton, Mrs. E. Gordean and Mrs. M. L. Lieberman; in Estevan, Sask., Mesdames L. Hurt, J. Krivel and J. Berger; in Lipton, Sask., Mrs. S. H. Naimark and Miss Rebecca Braunstein; in Kingston, Mrs. L. Abrahamson, Miss Celia Zacks; in Toronto, Mesdames S. Kronick, A. B. Bennett, L. M. Schwartz, I. Cohen, D. Dunkelman.

At present there are 4,000 members of Hadassah in Canada. Montreal has 1,700 and Toronto about 800 members. Mrs. A. J. Freiman is president; vice-presidents are Mrs. L. Fitch, and Mrs. S. Kahn, of Montreal; Mrs. A. Selick, and Mrs. D. Dunkelman, of Toronto; Mrs. M. Rady and Mrs. H. E. Wilder, of Winnipeg; Mrs. H. Singer and Mrs. R. Kates, of Montreal, are honorary secretary and honorary treasurer, respectively. Dominion Council members from Montreal: Mesdames E. G. Bernstein, S. Boulkind, M. A. Brown, M. H. Cohen, S. Cornerstone, R. A. Darwin, J. Edelberg, M. M. Eydes, M. Garfinkle, I. Goldman, L. Hertzig, S. Jaffe, L. Klineberg, A. Levin, H. H. Livingstone, L. Miller, L. Livingstone, L. Matthews, J. NORTHERN ONTARIO
CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, powers, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

For free copies write: G. A. ELLIOTT, Director of Colonization, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario. "Please mention this paper."

Among Toronto Jewish Women

Mrs. L. Yolles, of 104 Lyndhurst Avenue, says: "Two of the most capable women of my acquaintance are Mrs. M. S. Till, 12 Boulton Drive, and Mrs. Harry Clavir, 622 Huron Street. The former is a superlatively fine organizer as her success with the Mothers' and Babes' Rest Home in Bronte proves. She would make a wonderful business executive, yet as a homemaker and a woman she is possessed of a charm and graciousness that equals her efficiency in organization matters. Credit for the remarkable work that the Hebrew Maternity Aid Society has accomplished, I believe, is due to Mrs. Harry Clavir. She was one of the hardest working presidents in the organization. She keeps a model orthodox Jewish house Mrs. Clavir and her husband making it a point to keep the family together at home Friday evenings, distinguishing that night from others in the week."

—for HER SAKE!

No milk can be too good for children.

Because we keep that fact in mind is the reason why City Dairy milk has enjoyed the confidence of Toronto mothers for over 30 years.

City Dairy milk is excellent milk . . . it doesn't "just measure up" to the standard for good milk. . . but goes well beyond it. For your children's sake we welcome you to visit our plant and spend the short time necessary to satisfy yourself that you should give them City Dairy milk. It's the best that long experience and the most modern methods known to dairy science can produce.

Health Service

OF THE

Canadian Medical Association

Edited by

GRANT FLEMING, M.D. — ASSOCIATE SECRETARY

AN ESSENTIAL FOOD

If any one food can be called an essential food, milk is such a food. Beyond question, milk is the most valuable single article of diet we possess. There is no other food which can really take its place.

Milk is a food, not merely something to drink. In milk are to be found practically all the substances which the body requires. As it is our best source of calcium, or lime, it provides the materials for building strong bones and sound teeth.

Children must have milk if they are to grow properly and have strong, healthy bodies. Milk is a complete food during the first months of life, and breast milk is, by far, the best for the baby. Cow's milk can never be more than a substitute for breast-milk.

As the child grows older, he is given other foods, but during the early years of life, milk forms the basis of his diet. Every child should be given at least one pint of milk a day. This can be taken as a beverage, or it can be served on cereals or other foods, or made into soups, custards, and plain puddings.

Milk is an economical food; there is no waste in it. Because we see it as a liquid, we are apt to forget about the fat, sugar, protein and minerals which it contains and which make it so nourishing.

Milk should not be thought of as a baby's food, or merely as an accessory to be used to flavour tea or coffee. Milk and milk products, such as butter and cheese, are foods which should be used by everyone, young and old. They, together with green, leafy vegetables and fruits, should be part of the daily diet throughout life.

As we have said, milk is the most valuable food we have, but milk that becomes contaminated with the germs of disease is highly dangerous. Milk from cows which have tuberculosis is responsible for the bovine type of tuberculosis in children which causes disease and crippling. Milk contaminated with barnyard dust and dirt causes diarrhoeas in children, which condition is responsible for the death of many little ones. In its handling, milk may be contaminated with disease germs by the milker, or by the use of impure water or by milking utensils which have not been sterilized.

Milk should come from clean, healthy cows which are free from disease, and it should be handled in a cleanly manner. Before use, it should be pasteurized. Pasteurization destroys any disease germs which may have gained entrance into the milk, for, despite all precautions, they do get in, and that is why all milk should be pasteurized.

Use milk because it is such a valuable food, but before you take it yourself, and particularly, before you give it to your children, make sure that it is pure and safe.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Marriages

Black-Rosenberg

The marriage of Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Rosenberg, to Harry, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Black, took place Sunday, January 18th. The bride was given away by her parents. Over her gown of white satin fell a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses and lily of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Rae Rotman in a gown of green satin. The bridesmaids were Misses Annie Troster in lemon coloured satin with mauve trimming and shoes to match, and yellow roses, Pearl Lax in mauve satin with shoes to match carrying pink roses, Ruth Rosen, egg-shell tulle, red shoes and bouquet of red roses; Lillian Sherman in blue satin with silver shoes and bouquet of pink roses; Annie Goldman in pale blue taffeta, shoes to match and red roses; and Rae Finkelstein, in green tulle with pink roses. The best man was Manny Rotman, uncle of the bride, and the groomsmen were: William Rosenberg, Moe Cadesky, Leo Rascoe, Moe Baker, Ben Finkelstein, and Murray Kline. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Black left to spend their honeymoon in Toledo, Cleveland, and New York, the bride travelling in a blue ensemble with shoes to match and grey squirrel coat with matching purse.

The barber with clippers in hand stood bewildered at the unexpected exhibition. Inquiring what was wrong. Becoming somewhat calmed I managed to explain to him, that I did not want a hair-cut, but to have my picture taken, and he told me that this was a barber-shop and said for me to go a few doors further where I can have that attended to. And there I went.

Upon entering that place, I was asked by the man in charge what he could do for me; I explained to him excitedly my predicament. He calmed me, and gave me his assurance that, as an expert in his profession, he can arrange it so that the side with the missing "pioh" will not be noticed on the photo. After we got through with fixing the price, he told me to enter a darkened room; he pulled the window-blinds down; shoved aside a curtain from a glass ceiling to get sky-light, and ordered me to stand straight which I readily obeyed. But all of a sudden, he wheeled over a cannon, trained his muzzle opposite my heart, and this time with a menacing, commanding voice, he ordered me to stand erect until he gets through with me. I immediately sensed that I fell into a trap, that this murderer is going to take my life without even having a chance to say "Vidoo." (deathbed prayer) and that my bones will not even come to "Kever Israel" (on a Jewish burying ground). Seeing death before my eyes, I started to plead with him for mercy, being a father of some young children, but he became all the time more impatient, until he runs over to me, grabs me by my shoulders, and exclaims: "You, Kleinshteteldinger, you stay straight as I told you, or" seeing that my pleadings are of no avail, I resigned myself to my fate.

But that murderer, as wicked as he was, he could not look on with his eyes as he was about to take an innocent life and a father of children he covered up his eyes with a heavy curtain and after commanding me once more not to make the slightest move, and just as he was about to pull the trigger of his cannon, I made a final desperate attempt to save my life and I ran out the front door to the sidewalk, fell over a policeman who was standing in my way and kept on running until I noticed a shool, where I ran in half dead and breathless. Any wonder!

And I asked the President of the Shool to allow me to act as Chazon that day so that I can "bench Goymel" and praise God for saving me from such a narrow escape, and told them all that happened to me that day. Immediately after I returned home without my picture, minus one "pioh" and firmly resolved never again to try to be photographed.

Riches and Poverty Are Represented at Simple Funeral for Nathan Straus

Up from the East Side and down from the Bronx came mourners to the funeral of Nathan Straus, January 13 in New York.

Silk-hatted men and richly furred women rubbed elbows with shabby, bearded and shawled figures as they packed into the pews and aisles of the Temple Emanu-El, 65th Street and Fifth Avenue, where the funeral exercises began at 10 a.m.

Jew and Gentile alike paid their last tribute to the man whose lifelong benefactions won for him the title of "First Citizen of New York" and whose pride of race and activities in behalf of his coreligionists made him a venerable and outstanding figure among the great Jews of the world.

In their eagerness to make this final gesture of respect and love the multitude jammed the Temple a half hour before the exercises began. As no cards of admission to the funeral had been issued, the first who came were the first admitted, regardless of creed, race or wealth, in accordance with the last wishes of the philanthropist.

Those who arrived on time and many who got there late were forced to stand outside. Thousands stood in the cold along Fifth Avenue while the funeral was in progress, hearing nothing, seeing nothing; just waiting. The great of the city were there—millionaires like John D. Rockefeller jr. and politicians like Mayor Walker and Tammany Leader Curry, and judges, and doctors and lawyers and bankers and great merchants, but the obscure and the poor were also there—inside the temple as well as outside.

Impressiveness marked the funeral but pomp was lacking. There were no flowers and the exercises in the temple consisted simply of three readings from the scriptures and one brief eulogy. The body was in the severest of plain white pine coffins. Choral and organ music which interspersed the four short talks lifted the only touch of elegance to the obsequies of this poor man.

For Nathan Straus died poor as his son revealed that is, poor compared with the riches he had when he retired from business in 1913. The intervening years until his death last Sunday morning in his home in the Hotel San Remo, 145 Central Park West, he had spent in giving his fortune away.

"The world will be surprised to learn how little my father left," said Nathan Straus jr. "Had he lived a few years longer and continued giving, he would have had nothing at all."

The exercises began promptly at 10 when the pine coffin was wheeled up the center aisle of the temple. Dr. Nathan Krass and Dr. H. G. Enelow, rabbis of the temple, accompanied by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue and Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, who had been waiting at the altar, walked down to meet it.

As they accompanied the coffin back toward the altar the organ played Mendelssohn's Funeral Hymn. Then Dr. Wise read a few lines from the Sacred Writings ending with "God will wipe away the tears from every face." There were many faces in the audience wet with tears.

Rabbi Krass intoned a prayer and the choir sang Handel's "In Thee I Have Trusted." Then the only eulogy was delivered by Prof. Phelps.

NEWS OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY

Palestine, and it has now been awarded for the third time.

"The Early History of the Arabs in Palestine" will be the subject of Dr. Maisler's research for the year. He is now writing a book on the Ancient Semitic nomads, the Arabs, the Hebrews and the Arameans, and their relations with the countries bordering on the great Arabian desert (Syria, Palestine and the Euphrates basin). According to Dr. Maisler's theory these groups of people were in early times closely connected with one another in their culture and religion. Dr. Maisler's previous work on Studies in the Ancient History of Syria and Palestine, published in 1929, was highly praised by competent authorities.

The American Office of the University announces that the Central Conference of American Rabbis has appropriated funds toward the Publication of the Kirjath Sepher, Bibliographic Quarterly published by the Hebrew University Press Association, and the "Tarbitz," Quarterly of the Humanities, published under the editorship of Professor J. Epstein of the Institute of Jewish Studies.

With the forthcoming number the Kirjath Sepher completes its seventh volume. Begun in 1924, the Kirjath Sepher gives a complete bibliography of all publications printed in Palestine, and a complete bibliography of all books appearing throughout the world which have any relation to Judaism. In addition, articles on Jewish bibliographical subjects appear from time to time.

Dr. I. J. Kligler, Head of the Department of Hygiene at the University, has taken over the direction of the health education department of the Straus Health Center in Jerusalem and will also supervise the work of the entire Center. He has also assumed general supervision of the Tel Aviv Center maintained at Hadassah.

Dr. Judah L. Magnes, Chancellor of the University, has been invited to become a member of the General Agricultural Committee of Palestine representing the Hebrew University as the chief research institution in Palestine.

After quoting briefly the events of Mr. Straus's life Dr. Phelps praised Mr. Straus's lifelong philanthropy.

"Often one must aim early," he said. "Money given in health is gold; money given in sickness is silver; money given after death is lead. There is no more effective sermon than a good life. It has been my good fortune to know many unselfish and noble men and women, but never have I known anyone who combined such a passion for righteousness with such gladness of heart. [illegible] Mr. Straus was one of the most [illegible] men for the underprivileged and especially [illegible] eight months ago after [illegible] years of [illegible] Mr. Straus's [illegible] civilization [illegible] minutes."
